Hi Chris and Mardi

Just a quick email to say a big thanks for yesterday. All 5 of us from Leisure Networks thoroughly enjoyed the day - I said yesterday afternoon, it was one of the better seminars I have been too - partly due to the great presenter, but also the content and relevance to our work. It was interesting that we knew a lot of the messages as to the 'what' is occurring in some these communities, but didn't know the 'why's'!!

So thanks again for inviting us – it's really provided a clearer understanding for us!

Cheers
Brooke

Greetings ladies
Congratulations for taking the initiative in organising such an inspirational speaker yesterday.

Narain not only spoke eloquently for 6 hours, she was able to challenge gently: teaching methodologies, communication techniques, management of students and clients and give us a total understanding what are the blockages that are stopping us succeeding in improving educational/job/social outcomes for a growing % of our population.

She posed many new ideas for us to deliver our services to communities in a very, very different ways to the past. Look forward to furthering these new methods of managing students and clients in the future.

If there is anything that G21 can assist with in the future, please do not to hesitate to contact us.

Mardi, I am sure that the Skills taskforce and the Life Long Learning Pillar would be very interested in hearing the philosophy of Naim. (perhaps some of them attended Tuesdays session).

Cheers
Chris

Mardi,

I just wanted to say thank you for the Bridges out of Poverty, there seems to be some very positive feedback locally, it will support some greater integration.
